

Harris Files Petition To Dissolve Traffic Injunction

Action Based On Superior Court Ruling

COUNSEL for Chief Burgess Hal H. Harris yesterday petitioned the Monroe County Court to dissolve an injunction restraining the mayor from diverting heavy commercial traffic into Ann St. except during certain specified periods.

Atty. Harold C. Edwards filed the petition because the Pennsylvania Superior Court handed down a ruling March 18 that municipalities have the power to regulate traffic within their own jurisdiction.

The plaintiff, William Tarr, sought the injunction against Harris early last year after the chief burgess stationed patrolmen at the corners of Ann St. and S. Seventh, and at Main and Ninth Sts.

The patrolmen were ordered to enroute all through truck traffic off Main St. and into Ann St. between Ninth and Seventh Sts.

After partial hearing in the case, Judge Fred W. Davis entered a dissenting decree on June 14, 1956, which provided that Harris be enjoined from placing officers at Ninth and Main Sts., and at Seventh and Ann Sts. for the purpose of diverting truck traffic, except between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week from June 1 to October 15.

Question

In petitioning the court to dissolve the injunction, Atty. Edwards noted that the question originally involved was the right of the burgess to divert trucks from Routes 611 and 209 at Ninth and Main Sts. and at Seventh and Ann Sts.

The mayor took this action because of heavy traffic congestion at these points, the petition observed, and for the purpose of "relieving the heavy and continuous traffic existing at these points during daylight hours."

"Since the issuance of said injunction . . . the question involved has been decided by the Superior Court . . . in the case of the Commonwealth versus Harris," the petition stated.

That opinion "specifically gives to police officers the right to divert traffic to expedite traffic and divert congestion," the petition added.

The petition is returnable at 10 a.m., April 8 in Monroe County Court.

The Superior Court decision concerned the case of David M. Harrison, Pittsburgh, who protested fines levied against him for twice disregarding signals of a traffic patrolman even though the officer's orders were contrary to normal traffic conditions.

Superior Court President Judge Chester H. Rhodes held that an officer has legal authority to change the flow of traffic to alleviate heavy or dangerous travel conditions. The ruling also held that Pennsylvania municipalities have the power to regulate traffic within their jurisdiction.

Two Die In Shooting Spree

POINT MARION, April 1 (P)—A man shot and killed his wife tonight, wounded two policemen and held off other officers several hours before killing himself.

Police said Robert Birch, 37, killed his wife, Juanita, with three shots from a .22 caliber pistol or rifle. Birch wounded Police Chief William Moser of Point Marion and later killed State Police Cpl. Harlan Rarig with a shot.

Birch holed up in an upstairs bedroom some two hours while state police fired tear gas into the home in an effort to drive him out. After firing the gas, officers waited about an hour, then entered the home with gas masks and found Birch lying dead across a bed.

Democrats Lead In Michigan

DETROIT, April 1 (P)—With a fourth of the vote counted, Democrats tonight forged into the lead for six of the seven partisan offices up for decision in the statewide spring election.

The one Republican out in front was George M. Foster, who held a 193 vote margin over John C. Mackie, a young Flint surveyor, in the race for state highway commissioner.

Foster, bidding to retain Republican control of one of the last two major statewide administrative posts out of Democratic hands, had 140,687 votes to 140,494 for Mackie on the basis of returns from 1,367 of the state's 5,181 precincts.

In a contest for the second major Republican-held post in Lansing, Democrat Lynn M. Bartlett, Grosse Pointe school administrator, was ahead of Edgar L. Harden, Republican, by 138,970 votes to 130,661.

Harden took a leave as president of Northern Michigan College at Marquette to make the campaign.

Detectives Dig Into Money Deals To Solve Marcus Murder

CHICAGO, April 1 (P)—Detectives dug into the big money deals of Leon Marcus today in an effort to find out who killed him and why. Marcus, who came to nationwide notice last summer as a prime figure in the 2½ million dollar Orville Hodge scandal, went to his death carrying more than $300,000 in cash and checks and a copy of a receipt for $100,000 paid by a hoodlum.

The receipt, dated Feb. 1, 1955, "Received from Mr. Sam Giancana $100,000 to apply on mortgage in the amount of $150,000 on the property located at 5400 N. River Road known as River Road Motel."

Sam (Mooney) Giancana, a gambling boss of the old Capone syndicate, was hunted for questioning.

Check

A check for $300,000 was found in Marcus' wallet. It was made out to Marcus, drawn on the Society National Bank of Cleveland, Ohio, dated June 28, 1956 and signed by an oil promoter named John Harmon.

Harmon, 50, who lived in Evansville, Ind., was killed in an automobile accident Sept. 22, 1956, near Carmi, Ill.

Harmon's widow and Joe Vol Butt, a member of the law firm handling the Harmon estate, said they didn't know Marcus or of any business he had with Harmon.

A revised inventory of the contents of Marcus' wallet and pockets showed he had $312,480 in cash and checks.

Checks drawn on out-of-town banks included one for $40 on the First National Bank of Phoenix, Ariz., and one for $100 on the First National Bank of Lake Geneva, Wis.

The travelers checks and an international air travel card indicated Marcus may have planned to take a trip abroad.

Marcus, 61, was the majority stockholder of the Southmoor Bank & Trust Co. in Chicago when Hodge, then state auditor of Illinois, funneled more than one million dollars in phony state checks through it.

William Touhy, deputy chief of detectives, said he plans to question Hodge, Hintz and Epping.

Crushed To Death

MAHANOY CITY, April 1 (P)—Thomas E. Flaherty, 43, of Mahanoy City, was crushed to death today when a big tractor-trailer truck loaded with coal went out of control on a downgrade on Route 45 over Vulcan Mountain between here and Tamaqua.

Bangor Cancels Contract On Sewage System

BANGOR—Borough Council last night cancelled its contract on the construction of a sewage disposal system on the recommendation of the sewage committee.

The council awarded the contract to Gannett, Fleming, Corrdy & Carpenter in 1949. Since then, the borough has paid the consultants about $6,000 in engineering fees.

Last night the lawmakers voted to give the contract to Eways Corp. of Harrisburg, on a temporary basis for further study.

The State Highways Department requested council to pass ordinances authorizing the moving of Washington St. 15-feet westerly away from the Washington quarry hole.

In the last two years, the Highway Department has been endeavoring to improve this area safety-wise. Officials informed council the borough would be in no way financially obligated for the proposed improvements.

However, council took no action until it would not be legally responsible for large damages.

Five Bids

Council received five bids for a new police cruiser, the low figure of $1,010 being submitted by Russell T. Brown for an eight-cylinder, specially-designed Studebaker. The contract was then awarded to Brown by seven-to-five vote.

Horace Jennings, chairman of the law committee, reported that the claim of Ira Dutt for injuries received in a fall on borough streets had been placed in the hands of the borough's insurance company.

Council voted seven-and-five to relocate parking meters in the borough; to eliminate all penny parking; and to install several 15-minute meters in business areas.

It also stipulated that no parking meters should be moved from First St. between Market and Broadway. The lawmakers also authorized the installation of several new safety devices in the town hall and library to insure saving of about 26 percent in insurance premiums.

Borough Solicitor J. Lawrence Davis informed council that he had placed a first lien against the property of George M. Nagle on S. High St. for $1,812.33. The lien was placed for the removal of rubbish on his premises.

The law committee was directed to determine the feasibility of conducting a sheriff's sale to collect the amount of the lien.

Federal Pay Setup Hits New Peak

WASHINGTON, April 1 (P)—A report that the federal payroll hit a new peak in January prompted Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) to urge today that the administration launch a "cost consciousness campaign."

He suggested it would help cut President Eisenhower's $2-billion-dollar budget.

Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader, said Congress could slash its own appropriations "but the more important step is for the federal government to cut down on its own spending."

He told reporters that a report by Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) "points the way to the real problem on economy."

Top Month

Byrd, who heads the Senate-House Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Expenditures, said the nonmilitary federal payroll was one billion dollars in January, the highest monthly total yet.

He said regular civilian workers for the government drew $895,549,000 and foreign nationals employed by U. S. agencies abroad were paid $16,700,000 during the month.

This peak was reached, Byrd said, despite a decrease in federal employment during January.

Hearing Reported Before Application

HARRISBURG, April 1 (P)—A legislative committee probing the State Pardon Board was told today that the board listed a special hearing for a Delaware County case seven days before the application was made.

David Kohn, committee counsel, said Louis Devito was granted a special listing for hearing his commutation pleas even before he had formally applied for the hearing.

Beck Enters Secret Meeting With Teamster Union Chiefs To Chart Future Campaign

WASHINGTON, April 1 (P)—Dave Beck came quietly back to Washington today and went into a secret meeting of the Teamsters' Union's executive board.

There was no immediate word on what the board was considering, but it was reported President Beck and other leaders of the union were debating possible withdrawal from the AFL-CIO.

The federation's executive council suspended Beck as an AFL-CIO vice president and council member Friday for his refusal, earlier last week, to tell Senate racketeers investigators about his alleged personal use of some $320,000 of Teamsters funds.

Beck invoked the Fifth Amendment and said answering questions about his personal finances "might" tend to incriminate him, especially since the Internal Revenue Service was investigating his federal income tax returns.

No Comment

Officials at the union's five-million-dollar headquarters here refused to say whether the executive board was meeting, but other sources confirmed that it was. Beck's office said he was in town all right, having flown in from Seattle.

It was considered likely, too, the board may take up Beck's announced plans for a million dollar publicity program to tell "the union's side of the story."

Beck had said the million dollars already had been approved by board members in an informal telephone poll, but the union's general secretary-treasurer, John English, a board member, said he'd never been polled and would refuse to turn loose any money for publicity for Beck.

English has, for some time, been critical in private of some of Beck's operations, including his getting the union to buy his home for $163,000 and letting him continue to live in it rent free. English's opposition to Beck's publicity fund idea was the first open break, however.

The executive board meeting broke up about 6:30 p.m. and members said any announcement would have to come from Beck. Beck could not be reached and his office said "There's no statement at this time." Members said the session was an all-day, one-day affair and would not continue tomorrow.

At Raleigh, N.C., Sen. Morse (D-Ore.) suggested in a speech that members of the Teamsters Union "should rise up and demand a house cleaning." Morse recommended "the fullest prosecution of the law" for Beck.

President Accepts Hildreth Request

WASHINGTON, April 1 (P)—President Eisenhower today accepted the resignation of Horace A. Hildreth, former Republican governor of Maine, as ambassador to Pakistan.

In a letter to the President, made public by the White House, Hildreth noted that he has been in Pakistan nearly four years, and asked to be relieved by May 1 because "my personal affairs have necessarily suffered from neglect."

Good Morning!

It isn't the minutes you put in at the table that makes you fat . . . it's the seconds.

Five Separate Ceremonies Mark Program

FOR THE first time in history, motorists can now drive uninterrupted from the Ohio border to the Poconos.

This was made possible yesterday when the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission formally opened its new 47.6-mile section of the Northeastern Extension from the Lehigh Tunnel at Bowmanstown to the Wyoming Valley Interchange between Wilkes-Barre and Scranton.

Before yesterday, only 47 miles of the 200-million-dollar extension was in use—from Plymouth Meeting outside Norristown to Emerald, north of Allentown.

In August, an additional 16 miles will be opened carrying the turnpike to the Chincilla terminus north of Scranton. And, eventually, the extension is to be extended to Binghamton, N.Y., where the New York State Thruway Authority hopes to provide another link through the state to join its own New York-Buffalo trunk line in the Syracuse-Utica area of central New York.

Officials

Five separate ribbon-cutting ceremonies at various points along the high-speed superhighway were included in yesterday's inaugural program. Turnpike Commission members, headed by Vice Chairman Merritt Williams, and a number of state officials participated.

At Pocono Interchange, west of Blakeslee at the point where the extension crosses Route 940, a large gathering of Pocono Mountain citizens was present for the opening ceremonies. Taking part in the program were local business and resort leaders, motor club officials, Tolyhanna Signal Depot officers and office holders.

The Northeastern Extension is a four-lane, divided highway similar to the main turnpike. It includes the 4,379-foot Lehigh Tunnel that cuts through the Blue Mountain at Bowmanstown. The toll road crosses the Lehigh River twice and the Lackawanna once.

The highway has two rest areas, ant-service stations, accessible to both north and southbound traffic. The fare for passenger cars is approximately one and one-third cents a mile.

Over its entire stretch, the extension will have no grade of more than three percent and no curve beyond five degrees.

Shakeup

Informants said the Cabinet shakeup was intended to give the government a stronger hand in dealing with banditry and tribal defiance.

These sources said Ala, 74-year-old veteran politician, would announce his resignation after the departure of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, now visiting in Tehran. Ala was delaying the announcement in order not to embarrass Adenauer, the informants added.

The informants said Dr. Manouchehr Eghbal, 49-year-old energetic politician, physician and educator, would be suggested as Ala's successor. Eghbal is rector of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and rector of Tehran University.

Ala has been premier this time since April 7, 1955.

Lenten Meditation

A Priest

St. Matthew's-St. Luke's Parish

O sure! He isn't smoking. But when he comes home from work at night and the little woman doesn't have supper ready, you can hear him bellowing half way down the block. Yes! Mrs. Gossip. About - your - neighbor isn't drinking coffee during lent but she's still talking about all the latest back-fence scandals. Little Miss Senior.

In High School has given up chewing gum and knitting all the teachers she doesn't like, and cheating on her examinations.

How easy it is to miss the forest for the trees. How easy it is to fast and pray and forget charity. The two greatest commandments are these: Love God with your whole mind, your whole heart, and your whole soul, and the second which is like unto the first: LOVE YOUR NEIGHBOR AS YOURSELF.

WHEN THE man in the street thinks of Lent, the first thing that comes to his mind is prayer and fasting. But why pray more during Lent? Because we want to show God more love. But why fast during Lent? Because we want to show God by sacrifice more love. Through prayer we talk more to God and through fasting we sacrifice more in His honor.

"O! So the whole schwammerin and publicity that surrounds Lent is the Love of God. Why didn't somebody tell me?" The very core and heart of Lent is charity, love. Now there can be some Christians who are giving up eating between meals, who are pulling in their belts, giving up cigarettes, attending extra devotions at Church, and going to no movies, nor having a glass of beer during Lent, who have missed the most important message of Lent.

Businessmen Plan For May Program

STROUDSBURG Businessmen's Assn. finalized the outline of plans for Tobyhanna Days, scheduled for May 9, 10 and 11 in the Stroudsburg, at a dinner meeting in the Penn-Stroud Hotel last night.

It was voted to cooperate with the Tobyhanna Signal Depot in the display of military exhibits during the three-day observance and to award $225 in U.S. Savings Bonds as a means of increasing interest in the celebration.

Dr. Samuel Sullivan, chairman, reported the Stroudsburg Parking Authority is making progress in its efforts to find a solution to the parking problem in the business district. A firm has been engaged to survey possible sites for parking lots and is due to make its report within a few weeks, the chairman said.

Dr. Sullivan added that September is the tentative date set for work to begin on the first parking lot.

Chester Miller presided at the business session in the absence of Charles Marsh. Reports of the budget and membership committees indicated good progress in obtaining members, but it was urged that all businessmen, both retail and professional, support the association's 1957 promotional plans by taking out memberships.

Register Complaint On Shortway Delay

The battle to obtain federal approval of the Keystone Shortway — vital link in the shortest highway route possible between New York and Chicago — has reached the crossroads.

Strong pressures have been exercised in Washington and elsewhere to have the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads approve a route that would take the highway north of New York City into New England.

The route selected by the Pennsylvania Highways Department on the basis of its own and independent surveys runs between Stroudsburg and Sharon. It would be a direct route across the state and would connect with superhighways to be built in Ohio and New Jersey. As proposed, each highway would coincide closely with a straight line drawn from Chicago to New York.

Outside interests which are endeavoring to divert the Shortway from its straight line route have requested a new survey on costs and traffic based on building the road by way of Scranton, Port Jervis and Peekskill, N.Y., and Hartford, Conn.

The new study was authorized by the Bureau of Public Roads at the request of New York State and Connecticut, which said that the traffic which the new highway would develop between Chicago and New York City was too great to be dumped into the congested metropolitan New Jersey-New York area in the vicinity of Bergen County and the George Washington Bridge.

This district's congressman, Francis E. Walter, has arranged a conference in Washington tomorrow, with state and federal officials invited to attend. Purpose of the meeting is to reach an agreement on the most practical route and then to press for its speedy approval.

Rep. Walter maintains that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as a whole would be gravely injured by any change in location of the route between Chicago and New York as it pertains to Pennsylvania and that the Commonwealth has the sole right to say where the road should go. In this, he supports Gov. George M. Leader and Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler in designating the Sharon-Stroudsburg line as the most economical, practical and feasible that can be built.

The United States has an even greater stake than Pennsylvania in finding the best possible route. From a national defense standpoint, it is urgent that a straight-line superhighway be built between the two largest industrial centers of the country—New York and Chicago.

A longer highway that terminates in New England cannot serve the nation as well as one leading directly into New York City. In normal times, the northern route would add immensely to the traffic congestion north of New York City, and in an emergency such as war-time, the result would be utter confusion.

We cannot imagine the Department of Defense approving any line except the direct Chicago-to-New York Highway that would include the Sharon-to-Stroudsburg Shortway as a key link, with a direct connection with Philadelphia and its port facilities.

The Daily Record suggests that individuals and organizations register complaints against further delays in approving the Shortway as originally proposed. Send a letter or telegram immediately to Bertram D. Tallamy, federal public roads administrator, General Services Building, Washington, D. C.

Any decision that goes against the Sharon-Stroudsburg proposal is not in the best interests of either Pennsylvania or the national defense. A flood of letters and telegrams will impress federal officials of this fact. Add your voice by registering your views with Mr. Tallamy at once.

All Citizens Should Support Cancer Drive

A 30 million dollar fund drive was launched yesterday by the American Cancer Society. Monroe County's campaign share is $7,100.

The money is to be used for research, public and professional education and service to cancer patients.

Medical science has taken great strides toward determining the causes of cancer and in seeking an effective cure. But a steady flow of contributions is needed to continue the progress. The American Cancer Society has set this figure at 30 million dollars this year.

George Sokolsky Says...

Public Wants True Portrayal Of Life In Its Movies And Television Shows

Recently it has fallen to my lot to see more movies than usual and more television shows at late hours and the thought has come to me that the romantic stereotypes which have been identical over the years do not portray American life as vividly or as correctly as the realistic concepts of Paddy Chayefsky whose "Marty" was an authentic as "Annie's Irish Rose," and whose forthcoming "The Bachelor Party" not only is excellent portraiture but includes the quality of depth. His characters not only live, but they discover that there are basic, unchangeable, permanent laws of life which are violated at our peril.

David Belasco used to seek realistic portrayals of romantic themes. But realism in the movies and on television has been suffocated by the need for stereotypes so that there might be a speedy identification by the viewer of the personality. A Hitchcock detective is generally depicted just as in a Western, the hero sits on a white horse.

But simple, plain people are never really stereotyped, except perhaps by a dialect. The inhabitants of a public housing project look and dress and act alike than the inhabitants of a Park Avenue tenement of the rich.

The latter all take on the current fashionable mannerisms; the former fight for individuality because that is what makes the big difference in their lives. They call it personality.

When they say that such and such a one has personality, they mean that despite the austere-ness of proletarian lives, the person has achieved individuality, that the person stands out. This Paddy Chayefsky manages to convey with keener perspicacity than most writers today.

There is another point about "The Bachelor Party" that interested me sufficiently to write about it. Each generation makes its own life and accepts its own forms. For instance, when I was 16, a girl would not be found dead in the knee-length, white cotton, shapely stockings that current teen-agers find fashionable. In those days, a high school girl wore a white middie-blouse, a full skirt, black stockings, neatly gartered. She would have regarded the current styles as sloppy.

These are not matters of style only; these are characteristics of the mind of the times and youth is an excellent measure of a generation because it is thus possible to project into the future. Certainly the alcoholic abnormalities of the 1920's were not without their influence upon the spiritual depression of the 1930's — a spiritual depression, the effects of which we feel today in the myriad confusions in both the public and family life of our times.

So, for one who comes from another, a more peaceful and stable generation, it is interesting to watch the struggle for identity of the younger folks who today have all sorts of advantages, except the one of stability. Paddy Chayefsky catches that in "The Bachelor Party" even better than in "Marty," for he has discovered the loneliness that can exist within a crowd.

There is an inter-racial party somewhere in Greenwich Village, one of those bang-up affairs that John Kasper used to attend, the same Kasper who is now a fierce racistist. At this party is a girl who says she is from Vassar and who boasts of peccadilloes like a flapper in the 1920's.

She is a frightfully lonely girl who can explain everything in life by the existentialism of Sartre, except her own loneliness which probably has no other explanation than that she is at heart a decent, fine person who wants to appear wicked and awful and therefore has a confusion of her own. Before she will allow herself to be kissed, she asks the young man to say that he loves her even if he does not mean it.

She really craves an ordinary married life, the kind that goes with a G.I. mortgage and two babies in three years, but she also wants to appear as though she needs four husbands and 10 lovers like a dame who is trying to make "Confidential" magazine.

This character is brilliantly delineated and played. I do not remember the name of the actress, not being a movie critic, but only a viewer who buys a ticket and sits in back to the chagrin of the teen-agers who like to neck in the rear of a house. What do they want with anyone of my generation in their preserves?

Interviews Scare You? These Tips Will Help

By Anne Heywood

Robert Benchley once said that there are two kinds of people in the world—people who divide the world into two kinds of people and people who don't.

Well, I do—quite frequently. And today I'm thinking of the way two kinds of people approach a job interview.

There is the extroverted type who loves a challenge and thinks a job interview is a lark. She enjoys taking typing and shorthand tests and has her very best foot forward at such a time.

Real Torture Then there are the people to whom job interviews are real torture. They become tongue-tied and break out in cold sweats. No matter how good their typing is, they cannot take a test and hit a single key correctly.

Unfortunately, the second type somewhat outnumber the first. This whole business of taking tests—whether for employment, vocational reorientation, for passing courses or for admission to a skating club—is a real nightmare to many of us. And there are occasions in any life when a test has to be taken. If nothing else, there's always the driving test!

Frightened By Test But it's the job-hunting tests that seem to throw most people. After all, you want the job. You know that you can type and yet, when it's time to take the test, you act as if you never saw a typewriter before!

What to do? Here are some pointers that may help: First, be in good shape physically. Get plenty of sleep for a few days running, eat sensibly and walk a lot. Nervousness thrives on exhaustion, sluggishness and overeating.

Second, wear clothes that are comfortable. The chic outfit that you aren't at home in yet will paralyze you; the comfortable one will be a relaxing ally.

Third, explain that you're always uncomfortable in tests. Some people love them and some people don't. By telling the interviewer that you're the nervous type, you have a kind of net under you. Don't dwell on it, of course, but do mention it.

Trio For Keeping Fit: Food, Exercise, Rest

Other Jobs

Fourth, try to bear in mind the fact that there are other jobs. You may not think so, but there are. If this one is for you, you'll get it, but if you don't get it, it doesn't mean that you're a total mess. It just means that you'll get another!

If you're having trouble job-hunting, and especially if you've been a housewife for some time, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll send you my pamphlet, "The Older Housewife Goes To Business."

Robert S. Allen Reports...

Congressional Chiefs Feud Again With AEC Chairman

Washington, April 1—Atomic Chairman Lewis Strauss and congressional leaders are feuding again over a long-standing complaint against him—high-handedness.

Four separate grievances are involved in this latest clash, as follows:

Failure to apprise the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee regarding the nuclear agreements reached with the British at the recent Bermuda conference. Strauss participated in this parley, and the Committee knows important atomic decisions were made. But it has no inkling what they are.

Similar withholding of information, which the Committee is entitled to by law, about the breakdown of an atomic reactor at Arco, Idaho. The Committee knew nothing about this disturbing matter until notified by newspapers.

The prolonged delay in naming a successor to the late Commissioner John von Neumann, and Strauss' backstage opposition to reappointment of Commissioner Thomas Murray, who has repeatedly roused with Strauss over atomic weapons and industrial policies.

Reputed imposition of censorship on Pentagon officials, after a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee learned there is a serious shortage in "tactical" nuclear weapons. Significantly, one of Strauss' main critics in this new wrangle is Representative Carl Durham (D., N.C.), chairman of the Joint Committee.

In the past, relations between them have been more amicable than with other Committeemen. Durham has leaned over backward to maintain harmony. But now he is sharply critical of Strauss; particularly for withholding important information and stalling the selection of new commissioners.

THE BOSS—Adding fuel to that issue is a provocative remark attributed to Strauss when asked at Bermuda when the late Von Neumann's successor would be named.

"I am not ready to fill that vacancy yet," Strauss is credited with replying, according to the Joint Committee's report. Under the law, the President appoints members of the Atomic Energy Commission.

In discussing the matter with Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), Representative Durham pointed out that Republicans and Democrats are urging Commissioner Murray's reappointment. His term expires June 30. Durham asked if Rayburn had heard anything.

"They've told me no more than they have you," said Rayburn. "That isn't the way Strauss operates."

"This delay and silence is very disturbing," said Durham. "I find it increasingly difficult to escape the conclusion that Strauss is endeavoring to create a situation where he will be the one-man ruler of this vitally important Commission."

Behind Durham's concern is a blunt warning from other Committee leaders.

Spearheaded by Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N.M.), vice chairman, they have privately announced that if Murray is not appointed, they will fully investigate how and why he was blocked by Strauss.

The effect of such a probe would be to obstruct Senate confirmation this year of Strauss' choice for Murray's job.

THE BRUSH-OFF—Strauss also participated in the President's conference with congressional leaders following his return from the Bermuda conference.

But although atomic matters were discussed, neither Chairman Durham nor any other Joint Committeeman was asked to this meeting. Blame for this surprising omission is being put squarely on Strauss.

That is being done because Republican Committeemen say they have learned from White House sources that Strauss "objected" to their attendance.

He will be asked about this, when the Committee grills him on those unannounced atomic agreements at Bermuda. They fall into three highly classified categories, relating both to weapons and industry.

The undercover crackdown on Pentagon officials followed the appearance of Assistant Army Secretary Frank Higgins and Lieutenant General Carter Magruder before a special Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, headed by Senator Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), that is studying the hotly controversial question of missiles development.

In their private testimony, Higgins and Magruder stressed the need for more small nuclear weapons for tactical purposes, particularly by ground forces.

This is a very sensitive point with Strauss, as he has been under heavy fire on it by Commissioner Murray. In lengthy sessions with the Joint Committee, Murray has severely criticized Strauss for opposing the development and production of more atomic tactical arms.

Soon after Secretary Higgins and General Magruder testified, the Joint Committee was informed that Pentagon authorities were sternly enjoined to henceforth "clear" all statements to congressional committees with the Atomic Commission.

Note: The AEC is a five-member Commission; four commissioners and a chairman. Of the three sitting commissioners; Murray is the only one not hand-picked by Strauss.

Chestnuthill Talent Show On April 5

Brookheadsville — The third annual Talent Show sponsored by the Chestnuthill Parent Teachers Association will be held on Friday, April 5, at 8 p. m. in the high school auditorium.

Committees have been working for many weeks preparing for the show which has become one of the popular features in the West End. Amateur contestants were selected carefully to arrange for variety in the program.

To be featured, but not in competition, will be the Melodettes of the Progressive Woman's Club under the direction of Wallace Hornbrook; an acrobatic dancer, Leona Cyphers, a seventh grade student from Wilson Borough school.

The committee has also decided this year on a panel of three judges, all from outside of the county, to select the winners for prizes. Qualified judges on the dramatic, musical and all-around showmanship abilities of the contestants.

Immediately after the program, the PTA has arranged to have entertainment while the judges are preparing their decisions. Proceeds from the show will be used to finance a trip for the sixth grade students on a historical tour of Philadelphia.

April Party For Rebekahs On April 4

Newfoundland — "April's Children" will be honored by members of the Ladies of Paupack Rebekah Lodge of Newfoundland at the April 4 meeting which will be highlighted by the monthly birthday and anniversary celebration.

The April 18 meeting, which falls on Holy Thursday, has been cancelled, according to Agnes Waltz, Noble Grand, who presided at the semi-monthly business session held this week in the lodge hall.

A brief meeting was held in order that members of the lodge could attend the celebration of the 80th birthday of one of their members, Mrs. Frances Adams, South Sterling.

Readings commemorating the Schuyler Colfax birthday honored the prominent figure in the early history of the organization. Kathryn Krautter, Newfoundland, was appointed to represent the lodge in the Community Industrial Development Corporation.

Named to the April 4 refreshment committee were Ruth Phillips, Elsie Madden, Dorothy Hasser, Tillie Smith, and Betty Carlton.

Rev. Robert Lukens Speaker At PTA March Meeting

Newfoundland — "The fears, dreams, ambitions and problems of youth should be viewed with interior sight," Rev. Robert Lukens, pastor of the Moscow Methodist Church told parents and teachers of Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint High School Parent-Teacher Association at the March meeting at which Clayton Northup presided.

"Anxiety is the climatic factor today: fear of not being accepted; fear of what the gang may think, rather than what the parents may think," he pointed out.

He quoted a statement that "of all curable diseases, the one hardest to cure and the one most likely to leave the person a chronic invalid is adolescence."

He suggested that parents read and follow the Howard Whitman book "Let's Tell the Truth About Sex."

During the business meeting, the nominating committee appointed included Mrs. L. Webster Gilpin, chairman; Mrs. Robert Smith and Mrs. Wardell Robacker. Officers will be elected at the April 29 meeting and will be installed in May.

It was announced that an executive meeting will be held at 7:45 on April 29, preceding the regular business meeting.

Supervising Principal Leland Cramer reported that on April 11, there will be a half-day session at school, and the cafeteria will not be open, because of the county meeting for teachers at Honesdale. He also reminded parents of the District Orchestra Festival which will be held in Newfoundland on April 4, 5, and 6.

He said that enough homes have been offered to house the 80 guests and instructors who will attend the event.

Mr. Cramer also commended both the basketball squad and the community residents on their sportsmanship during the recent season.

The attendance award of $5 was won by Leon Schelbert's eighth grade. Parents of these students have given their children the award every month since the beginning of the school term in September by attending the PTA meetings regularly.

Martha Laurel Escoll Is Bride Of Daniel Lubeck

The roof garden of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel was the scene of the wedding of Miss Martha Laurel Escoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris J. Escoll, of 8208 Brookside Road, Elkins Park, and the Bius Mountain Camps, East Stroudsburg, to Daniel Elliott Lubeck son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Lubeck, 1411 Noble Road, Rydal.

They were married at 4:30 on the afternoon of March 31, with Rabbi Mortimer J. Cohen officiating. The room in which the ceremony was held was decorated with white flowers: Gladiolus, roses, and snapdragons.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Chantilly lace with long sleeves and a bateau neckline. A midriff of silk bombazine and a large bow accentuated the bouffant skirt which fell to a sweep train of silk bombazine. Her matching cap of Chantilly lace was trimmed with pearls and held a chapel-length veil of illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Vicki Lubeck, of Rydal, was maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of aqua chiffon, featuring a contrasting sash of turquoise velvet. She wore a matching disc of aqua chiffon with a back veil and carried blue iris, pink roses and gardenias.

The four bridesmaids: Mrs. Karl Hope and Mrs. Leon Rosner, of Wyncoote; Mrs. Nelson Kimmelman, of Elkins Park, and Miss Wendy Rosner, of Wyncoote, wore similar gowns of aqua chiffon with turquoise velvet sashes and matching hats. Their cascade bouquets were of blue iris and pink roses.

Dr. Philip Escoll, brother of the bride, of Park Drive Manor, Wayne Ave. and Harvey St., Philadelphia, served as best man. The ushers were Karl Hope and Leon Rosner, of Wyncoote, and Nelson Kimmelman, of Elkins Park.

The flower girls were nieces of the bride: Meg Hope, of Wyncoote and Lois Sally Kimmelman, of Elkins Park. They wore pink dresses with a bow in back and carried baskets of pink roses matching the pink roses in their hair. David Rosner, of Wyncoote, was ring-bearer.

The bride's mother wore a ballerina length dress of rose silk chiffon with white gloves and a corsage of pink orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of beige lace with matching gloves and a corsage of brown orchids.

A reception in the Rose Room of the Bellevue-Stratford followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Lubeck are now on a wedding trip to Haiti and Jamaica. For traveling the bride wore a navy blue suit featuring a fitted jacket with blouson back, white blouse, hat and gloves, and navy blue shoes and bag. Her corsage was of white orchids.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

Walking down a sunny but cool Main street on Saturday, I was interested in the sizeable group of people congregated around our front entrance.

"What's going on down by Wyckoff's?" a man demanded of his wife, as she met him by the Rea and Derick newspaper rack.

"An exhibit of Antique Automobiles," she replied. "Don't you ever read the paper?"

Just then several men came up the street from our store, wearing broad grins and chattering in amusement. "Them are real cars," one observed happily. "Boy, that old model-T sure takes me back."

"No fin fenders there," another agreed.

Thank heaven for THAT, I mused. Upswept lines can be fine . . . but it certainly seems to me that some of the manufacturers have been going a bit overboard of late.

Walking to the curb, I studied the lines of the 1920-some Packard parked first in line. It looked like a car, I decided . . . not like a Salvador Dali nightmare, or a cartoonist's conception of life on another planet. It was sturdy . . . dependable . . . dignified. It wasn't weighed down by so many lights, front and rear, one could mistake it at night for a grade crossing sign or a Christmas tree. "I'd settle for that anyway," I decided, wondering how long it will be until we're all settling for that. How long before automobile manufacturers decide they've long since hung and strung everything possible upon a car, and make their annual changes by straightening out curves, smoothing down ruffled upsweeps, and wiping away gadgets and gimmicks.

It will happen. I've no doubt of it at all. Look what happened to Frigidaire appliances! They were curved . . . they were elaborate. Now they are straight, sleek, and sophisticated once again—they are "different" as a monk's habit and a Liberace white mink overcoat are different. At first viewing this last fall I was shocked. "They're almost old fashioned," I said. "You must learn to like them in the way you learn to like olives and caviar."

And did I learn to like them? Naturally, I love them now. They're as new as tomorrow . . . a wonderful change from yesterday's style . . . a beautiful adaptation of a long ago ice box, with all the very latest refrigerator features.

That's how it will be with cars . . . at least, I hope so. I hope too that some of the peculiar color combinations now on the road will quiet down. Right now some of them are louder than the motor of any beat-up 1922 gas buggy. But whatever happens in car design next year, or the year after, there's this I'll say — an antique car may not be able to go too fast or too far, but it can still rate more oh's and ah's than this year's models, with all their fancy terms that mean "more power than you'll ever use, except to keep up with the Joneses."

AROUND AND ABOUT WYCKOFF'S: Comes a telephone call from Mrs. George Levin, asking for a few words about the membership drive and tea planned by the League of Women Voters for this Friday at the YMCA . . . One of the youngest visitors to our store the opening day of our 82nd anniversary sale was Tara, daughter of the Bill Mareans. Tara, whose name is East Indian and means "Little Star", was perched securely on the arm of her mother, the former Jean Gaunt, when I saw her, and getting just a bit drowsy. Bargain hunting can surely wear out a woman—even a very young one! . . . Met Mrs. Irving Kiffen, Mrs. Elton Denning, and Leonard Randolph among others, poring over the constantly renewed assortment of 49c used books in our center aisle. Mrs. Kiffen, who writes 'em, also loves reading mysteries, and so she must have had a field day—there are dozens of who-dunits in our sale. I like them too, and Mrs. K. and I agreed on one thing—we NEVER but never peek at the ending to see if we've guessed right which, as a matter of fact, we rarely do. And we could cheerfully murder anyone who reveals the ending . . . See YOU at Wyckoff's.

Teen-Agers Consider Security Measures For Future Life

What Young People Think

Security Among Major Goals For Modern Teen-Ager In United States

By Eugene Gilbert
President, Gilbert Youth Research Company

TEEN-AGERS today want to play safe. They'll take security, any day, over risky riches.

Eugene Gilbert

"It's better always to be sure of a little, rather than risking the lot," says Judy Laws of Brentwood, Mo. This comment reflected the general attitude of the young people we surveyed across the country. An overwhelming percentage favored a job offering security and an assured—if modest—income over the job presenting some risks but leading perhaps to future riches.

"I would only prefer security," says a 16-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., boy whose father is a foreman, "because my expectations are so great as to demand my taking a risk."

Think Riches Impossible
Hitching a wagon to a star would seem to have gone out with the wagon. But some young people of course still have praise for ambition. William Glass of Yonkers, N. Y., says: "The worst thing wrong with America today is the complete reliance on security as the boon of civilization."

And Virginia Floyd of Little Rock says: "I think a person would get stale if he didn't care anything about advancing himself."

One reason teen-agers are so sold on security is that they don't think it possible to make much money anyway. They point to high taxes, increased cost of living and military service as hazards to making much of a fortune.

"It's impossible to start nowadays on a small salary and eventually become a millionaire," many say.

"Sure, guys like Ford and Carnegie could create fortunes out of thin air," says a 17-year-old football player. "But they weren't stuck with 70 and 80 per cent taxes."

Who Needs Money?
Three-fourths of the youngsters polled believed it was easier to make a billion in the last century than it is today.

"Oh, some small fellow will," says a Brooklyn boy. "He'll be one of the few though. It's pretty tough these days—not to make the money, but to keep it."

Most teens say, though, that they're not dissatisfied. "Who needs money?" one girl asks. "We live better today than any emperor did centuries ago."

With television, home appliances, automobiles and airplane travel accessible to the average American, youngsters say they don't see the need of being a millionaire.

On the other hand they have what seem to be fairly optimistic ideas about what they ought to earn.

The boys figure they should start in at $75 a week on graduation from high school, $95 a week on graduation from college, $130 a week after age 30, and $145 a week after age 45.

Girls Family-Minded
The girls think they should make $65 a week after graduating from high school, $70 a week after college, and $85 a week after the age of 30. Then, for age 45, their sights drop to $80 a week.

Girls, being potential homemakers, are somewhat more security-minded than boys. The percentages on the question about security or risk leading to possible riches broke down this way: girls 82 for security, boys 74 for security. Only 23 per cent of the boys and 11 per cent of the girls voted for risks; the rest weren't sure what they thought.

Three-fourths of the girls say they voted that way because of family considerations. A 16-year-old lass from St. Louis puts it this way: "As a girl I'd choose security. I don't think it is wise to risk others' security for yourself. If there is no one dependent on you it is different."

Two-fifths of the boys voting for security also mentioned family responsibilities as the reason.

Of the group voting for risk, a large percentage did so primarily because they wanted to "make money."

The comments ranged from "I want to become a millionaire," from Richard Bove of Long Island City, N. Y., to the exhortation from C. E. Erbsen of New York City to "live dangerously."

One of the most optimistic of the ambitious group was Don Warlock of Springfield, Mo. "If I failed I could always start over," he says.

When do young people think they should retire?

One out of four thinks this should happen by 55 years of age, but more than 50 percent think retirement ought to occur anywhere from 60 or older.

The large number in favor of retiring after 60 and 65 is surprising. But the teenagers say that older men and women are better fitted today for job responsibilities. And by the time they themselves are in these age brackets, they figure, oldsters will be healthier and more alert than ever.

East Borough High Students Undecided About Job Choice

East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School
By Jeanne Daugherty and Ralph Carter

QUESTION: If you were given the choice of a job that offered security and an assured but modest income, or taking a risky job with the prospect of becoming rich, which would you choose?

Harry Miller—I would take the risky job. If it didn't work I could probably get a steady job with a smaller salary later. At any rate, you're only young once so I would take the chance.

Martha Rader—I would take the job with the smaller salary for the following reason: If I would be totally disabled or even killed while working at a risky position, the money would be of no help to me, but if I were to take the safer job the chance may arise when a higher position would be vacated or I would be entitled to a raise in salary.

Bob Gordon—The risky job, if it paid well and if the risk isn't too fantastic that it would involve a great loss. The steady low paying job is all right, at least one is sure of some sort of income. However, there are a great many other opportunities for a young person to advance in salary by doing so-called "risky" jobs. If he is going to college or needs to meet payments on a new car, then the job that pays the best dividends is better.

Denna Frederick—Under the circumstances, since I had nothing to start out with, I could not lose anything, so I would take the risky position. More than likely, if it didn't work out I could get another job. At least I would have the satisfaction of trying, and would never wonder years afterward if I had made the right decision. I'd never have to say "Just think, I could be rich now if . . ."

Weakness
Weakness in U. S. Hoffman was a late development. The stock closed at a new low for the year at 8 1/2, off 1 1/2. This compared with a high early in the year of 17 1/2.

U. S. Hoffman was the most actively traded stock. Part of the selling was attributed to reports of poor 1956 earnings. The annual report is due April 13.

A strike at plants of Goodrich in nine cities undermined that stock and others in the rubber group. Goodrich sold down to 69 1/2, closing at 69 1/2, off 1/2.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 10 cents at $174.10 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails down 20 cents and the utilities up 20 cents.

Of 1,126 issues traded, 361 advanced and 470 declined. There were 38 new highs and 37 new lows for 1957. Of the 15 most heavily traded stocks, only U. S. Hoffman declined. Ten of these stocks advanced and four closed unchanged.

Avco was the second most active stock. It gained 3/4 to 7 on improved earnings. Lukens Steel was the third most active and General Motors, unchanged, the fourth. Bethlehem Steel came in fifth, up 1/4 at 42 1/2.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed. Corporate bonds were at dead center with practically no change. U. S. government bonds eased in quiet dealings.

BLUE MOUNTAIN Camp, located in the Anasimink section of Monroe County, is currently in the midst of a $30,000 improvement campaign. It was announced yesterday by Morris J. Escoll, camp owner.

Blue Mountain Camp expects to have 12 major improvements completed for the opening of its 37th season. The camp actually consists of two camps, one for boys and the other for girls.

One of the biggest improvements is the completion of an outdoor theater, which will feature solid oak log seats and will be located between the two camps. New swimming cribs, new docks for canoes and motor boats and a new diving area are also on the agenda.

Rebuilt ball fields, new stone fireplaces and barbecue pits for both junior girls and junior boys will be completed. The nature trail is being extended through the camp woods and larger enclosures are being made for camp pets.

Picnic Grove
A picnic grove will be completed on the boys' side of the lake, where cookouts, picnics and co-ed breakfasts will be held. New trails are being cut from the woods for horseback riding. New paths are being made around the lake for hikes and adventure trips.

Also on the list of improvements are new campfire circles made of rustic logs, renovation of cabins with windows all around and knotty pine interiors. This piece of improvement has been underway for three years.

New facilities are being made at the girls' camp, which will feature knotty pine walls. Kitchens in both the boys' and girls' camps are being remodeled and will feature new equipment.

Construction work began last Fall and is still underway, Escoll pointed out. The entire program is headed by Joe Lord, Emory Lord and Frank Miller, popular caretakers at the camp.

Joe Yappalo is scheduled to return to the boys' camp as chef for the 18th year, while Jay Warfield will be chef at the girls' camp for the 10th year. Frank Forstner will be back as baker for the eighth year.

Officials Split Over Air Nominee

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 1 (AP)—President Pedro Aramburu and defiant air force officers split again tonight over a nominee for air minister. There were increasing fears that the dispute may erupt in shooting.

A ceremony to swear in Commodore Eduardo Francisco McLoughlin as air minister was called off suddenly without immediate explanation from the government.

It was reported that the President and others in his Cabinet opposed McLoughlin as compromise choice for the post while air force officers insist that he as their candidate should be chosen.

He became the air force choice after Aramburu refused to restore Commodore Julio Cesar Krause to the post.

Force
The air force had forced Aramburu into cancelling his appointment of Brig. Gen. Guillermo Zimny as Krause's successor despite the President's insistence that he must name his own Cabinet officers.

Krause conferred for 20 minutes tonight with Aramburu at Government House. On emerging he told reporters he did not know whether Aramburu accepted McLoughlin.

Fear still gripped Argentines over the outcome.

Haze and drizzle restricted visibility over the capital, where navy and air force planes bombed dictator Juan Peron's offices in June 1955 in an unsuccessful prelude to the revolution that ousted Peron three months later.

Charges TV Sets Give Off Radiation

LONDON, April 1 (AP)—Dr. Edith Summerskill, physician and Laborite legislator, charged in the House of Commons today that people are being harmed by minute doses of radiation given off by television sets.

Health Minister Dennis Vosper told her a panel of experts had been set up to study the effects of such radiation. He quoted a report by the committee which he said showed that television sets do not constitute a personal or significant genetic hazard.

Awards For Employees

EINDHOVEN, Netherlands, April 1 (AP)—A Dutch electronics firm is offering awards to employees who give up smoking. Names of those who take a pledge will be published in the company magazine so associates can check on them. The management says its aim is to discourage lung cancer.

QUESTION: Would becoming a millionaire today be easier or harder than in the last century?

Margaret Regan — It would be easier today because in the last century there weren't very many big factories or industries of any kind. You could hardly find work let alone becoming a millionaire.

In the last century the wages were low, where as today the wages are fairly high.

Geraldine Whitfield — It would be easier in our present day to become a millionaire because of the economic conditions and educational advantages.

Mary Seaplen — It is harder today because in the last century there wasn't any income tax. Today to become a millionaire you have to have luck or else be smart enough to answer questions on a quiz show.

Sally Morris — I believe it would be easier to become a millionaire today because of all the opportunities we have. We have a much better chance for advancement today than they had in the last century.

John Woodburn — Becoming a millionaire today would be harder than in the last century because of the high taxes and the high cost of living.

Pocono High School 4-H Club Receives Official Charter

TANNERSVILLE—Pocono 4-H Club has received its official charter from the Pennsylvania State University in recognition of its organization as a standard community 4-H Club.

The club consists of 26 members and an adviser, John Montgomery, industrial arts teacher at Pocono High School.

Under Montgomery's guidance, the club recently completed various electrical projects and started preparations for this Summer's activities. In the near future, the club also plans community service projects, according to a progress report made to Robert Stauffer, assistant county farm agent.

President
Donald Detrick is club president. William Mythel, secretary, and Douglas Bowman, treasurer. Weekly meetings are being held before the start of Summer projects after which there will be monthly meetings along with regular activities.

Montgomery said the club program covers project work, camping, softball, club week, officer training and other events still to be planned.

The dances will resume Saturday night, April 27, when competition will begin for achievement awards in waltz, swing and a choice of Latin dances.

Commissioners Receive Notice
COUNTY Commissioners received notice yesterday that reimbursement checks totaling $31,268.02 for work done by the county on flood-damaged bridges are being processed by the Department of Highways.

The money does not represent added revenue to the county, chief clerk H. Ray Saunders said. It is money owed to the county by the State through Civil Defense appropriations for reconstruction of bridges washed out in the 1955 flood.

Airplanes To Carry 'Moth' War To Area

HARRISBURG, April 1—State Agriculture Secretary William L. Henning yesterday said the biggest single airplane blitz ever attempted in Pennsylvania to wipe out highly destructive gypsy moth caterpillars goes into action in three northeastern counties on or shortly after May 1st.

The State Department of Agriculture has chartered two airplanes that will cover 100,000 acres of farm and forest land in parts of Monroe, Pike and Wayne counties to prevent defoliation of trees. The planes will spread a light mist to deposit DDT at the rate of one pound per acre without injury to bees, farm animals or wildlife, Henning said.

In conjunction with the Department of Agriculture will treat an additional 120,000 acres in the three counties, making a total of 220,000 acres to be sprayed while gypsy moth egg clusters are hatching.

Program
The Pennsylvania "operation gypsy moth" is part of a 2.5 million acre program during May in adjoining areas of New Jersey and New York, including all of Long Island. Cost of the 1957 blitz is estimated at $5 million. It will be the largest single aerial spraying job ever attempted in the United States, Henning said.

The gypsy moth was first found in Pennsylvania in 1932. More than $12 million was spent by the state and federal governments before DDT completely wiped out the menace in the Lackawanna-Luzerne County area by 1950, according to Dr. Thomas L. Guyton, director of the Bureau of Plant Industry. He will supervise the Pennsylvania program next month.

Annual trapping of male gypsy moths revealed isolated infestations outside the original Lackawanna-Luzerne area in each of the past few years, but prompt action by the state and federal departments eliminated the pests. It is believed that the current spotty areas of infestation result from moths being carried by winds from areas of heavier infestation in adjoining states.

Date Changed For Meeting

The board also set the date for Ladies Night, May 10 at the Fernwood, Bachkill. The nominating committee will report at the April meeting.

A. B. Wyckoff... the founder

The Wyckoff-Sears Store as it is today celebrating 82 years of business

Holt Wyckoff Elected To Presidency

By Madelyn H. Maloney

ELECTION OF E. Holt Wyckoff to the presidency of A. B. Wyckoff, Inc., "Pennsylvania's Largest Small Town Department Store," was the most exciting news to come from the Stroudsburg business organization during the celebration of its 82nd anniversary.

Announcement of the younger Mr. Wyckoff's election was made by his father and predecessor, Ernest H. Wyckoff, during the regular daily Wyckoff Shopper broadcast on the opening day of the 10-day anniversary sale now in progress. The senior Mr. Wyckoff continues his more than 40-year history with the family organization as chairman of the board.

The Wyckoff organization actually began far more than 82 years ago, although the first store had its inception at that time in what was then the family home, located at the present site in the heart of Stroudsburg.

This was the outgrowth of a merchandising idea established back in 1830 when two brothers, Jacob and Daniel Wyckoff set up a trade route between farmers in the rural area of Pennsylvania and city merchants. Business was done mostly by barter in those days, but gradually came newer methods based upon quick turnover and small profits—the rule which remains the guiding precept of A. B. Wyckoff.

Four generations have guided the destiny of the family project, the first store having flourished under the direction of Amzi B. Wyckoff, father of Ernest, and grandfather of Holt, J. L. Kerlin, another descendant of the Wyckoff brothers, is general manager and company vice president.

Many changes have, of course, been observed during the passing parade... and not just in the styles of the merchandise sold. Through the decades Wyckoff's has become more than a business institution to the area it serves.

A glance at the company scrapbook shows more than merchandising promotions of a distinctive nature. It shows pictures of hundreds of boys—now grown into manhood—proudly uniformed, and playing in the store band which was at various times directed by Willard Wolfe and Dr. Roscoe Van der Bie. It shows pictures of Art Shows, student, farm-and-fashion shows, minstrel shows, girls' sewing classes, Boy and Girl Scout tours, excursions to New York, Washington, D. C., and even Europe, sponsored by the store.

The Wyckoff scrapbook is crammed from cover to cover with news concerning business expansion, the welcoming of Sears Roebuck into the store operation during the early 1930s, the purchasing of the store airplane to facilitate merchandising contacts throughout the country, and the "old customer parties" which have become Mr. Wyckoff's traditional way of honoring his 50-year or more business friends each year. A study of the Wyckoff scrapbook is actually a study of the county's growth over a period of eighty-some years.

Tonight more than 200 guests will enjoy dinner with Wyckoff executives in the store's tea room. The anniversary celebration will continue through April 6.

Paint-Up Center Distributor For Metal-Saving Rust-Oleum

WHEN YOU'RE LOOKING for an industrial paint that has rust-stopping power, be sure it also has penetrating power. The reason for this is simple: Without penetrating power—through the rust to the bare metal—here can be no lasting rust-stopping power.

Rust-Oleum, the paint that is "as distinctive as your own fingerprint," guarantees both. Rust-Oleum penetration, traced by radioactive C14 radioisotope tracing methods, now enables you to literally look under the metal through the eyes of radioactivity. You can see this for yourself at the Pocono Paint-Up Center, 722 Main St., local Rust-Oleum dealer. Drop in this week and see the actual photomicrographs of how this unique paint stops rust by penetration.

Rust-Oleum doesn't "bridge-over" the tiny, microscopic pits in the metal, but actually goes into these pits to drive out air and moisture and coat the metal with a penetrating, low-surface-tension film that expands and contracts with the metal. Most manufacturers of protective materials specify that rusted metal surfaces must be free of rust before applying their product. With Rust-Oleum, however, you simply scrape and wirebrush to re-

OFF THE RECORD

Swimming
Wrestling
Tennis
Football
Basketball
Baseball

By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

For all intent and purposes, basketball (and social writing) is cleared up for this season. While the Pocono Mountain court loop has the playoff championship to clean up, basketball, for the most part, is passe.

However we would like to make one final comment on a few of the rules changed by the National Basketball Committee in Kansas City last week.

One favorable switch—from our vantage point—was the revamping of the one-and-one or bonus free throw proviso. While the over-all move to emphasize the bonus shot was not taken, steps were made to cut down on the number of "free" ones in colleges and schoolboy games.

In the higher institutions of learning and AAU contests, the regulation was written to read something like this: "Make the first six common fouls in each half one-shot violations; fouls after would revert to the current bonus rule—awarding a free throw in the event the first was made."

On the scholastic front, the set up is practically the same: "Allow one foul shot on the first four common violations for each half and then revert to the present bonus edict after that."

We imagine that the only reason for the slight difference in the first four and six point is that schoolboys play eight minute quarters or 16 minute halves. In college there is 20-minute halves.

Other changes by the committee—making body for U. S. and Canadian basketball, are the revision of the penalty for a double foul. Next year on such fouls the free throw will be eliminated and the ball returned to center of court for a jump. Each team will be allowed to choose their jumpers; and strengthen its five-second rule and cut down on "actionless and farcical" games. Game officials, under this rule, are instructed to call time out and warn the team or teams responsible for unnecessary stalling.

There was another action but the above trio seemed to be the most important at the moment. The other "stoppages" had to do with the tall boys and we believe there is nothing anyone can do to stop a lad from growing.

The bonus foul rule was always one of our pet peeves. We've come to the conclusion that basketball has turned into a foul contest with more time spent on the charity stripe than in actual combat.

All one has to do is scan the boxscores and find anywhere from fifty to one hundred shots tried by fives in action. To us, it has come to the point where schoolboys and college players are trying for starring roles in a drama where one is crying for a foul called against him, and other bellowing for a free-throw, because one violation is supposedly missed.

The half revamping of the one-for-one is a good step forward in our books to eliminate the perpetual march or the oft-time corny quote, "We can tell him by the foul line, he's always there."

We always hate to bring back the old days or for that matter yesterday, unless absolutely necessary. But in the not too long past, basketball was a shooting, passing, dribbling and strategic game. As a side light, like a home run contest before a game, a foul exhibition was held. This is the way it should be, not a two-hour school-boy contest, within "32 minutes."

Quick Pickups—Dave Nevil, the one who did everything but sell tickets when at Stroudsburg High, got a real workout in spring football drills at Lehigh University. It seems Engineer Coach Bill Leck only had only one right end on defense, and that was Dave. Needless to say Nevil went all the way on the flank for the Bethlehemites in scrimmages.

Stan Rittinski, brother of Charley of ESSTC fame, resigned his head coach post at Upper Meriondale High. They say one of the aspirants for the job is newly named head grid boss at Lehigh, Benny Jones, ex-Stroudsburg resident.

Austin Cyphers, the good basketball player for Fountain Hill who is handicapped by the loss of part of an arm, got his picture all over the country last week via Associated Press Wirephoto service. Cyphers, a regular on Charley Dubbs' habitual PIAA "B" kings, is a good example of what part intestinal fortitude plays in sports despite overwhelming handicaps.

Ted Blasts Taft And Marines

Bosox Slugger Denies Charges Against Truman, Government

By Joe Reichler

SARASOTA, Fla., April 1 (AP)—Baseball star Ted Williams affirmed today that he told a New Orleans editor the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) was a "phony" and that he had "no use for the Marine Corps" as the result of his recall to service in 1953.

But he denied that he criticized former President Harry Truman or said anything derogatory about the government.

A's, Pirates In 18-Inning Runless Duel

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 1 (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics and the Pittsburgh Pirates engaged in the longest scoreless duel of the exhibition baseball season today—18 innings—all for naught.

The game was called by agreement at the end of the 18th with the score still 0-0.

The longest previous scoreless effort this spring was 12 innings by the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees March 12. The Sox won 1-0 in the 13th.

Starter Ron Kline and Bob Purkey each went eight innings for the Pirates, giving up four and five hits, respectively, of the 11 collected by the As.

Garver Starts

Ned Garver started for the Athletics and led Pittsburgh to three hits in six frames. The Pirates got a total of only seven safeties. Mickey McDermott, who followed Garver pitched seven innings, allowing only two hits and two walks. McDermott fanned six.

Carl Duser wound up for the As and Vernon Law for the Pirates, each giving up two safeties.

Pirate Roberto Clemente got the only extra-base hit, a double in the first.

Yanks Halted By Rain

LAKELAND, Fla., April 1 (AP)—April came in on cue for the New York Yankees today, raining out a 1-0 Detroit Tiger lead in the second inning of an exhibition contest—after Tiger pitchers were given orders to work the full nine innings.

Manager Jack Tighe picked Duke Maas as his first starter to go the distance and Maas faced just six Yankees in the first two frames. He allowed one hit—a single—to Tony Kubek who was cut down stalling second.

Meanwhile Tighe optioned pitcher Max Simmons to Augusta of the Sally League, cutting the Tiger roster to 32 players.

Rosen Shuns Tribe

CLEVELAND, April 1 (AP)—Al Rosen telephoned Tucson, Ariz., today and told Manager Kerby Farrell of the Cleveland Indians he won't come out of retirement to play third base for the Tribe.

Unless it is simply due to differences over salary, this latest rejection by Rosen of an overture from the Indians would appear to end speculation on whether Rosen really means the retirement he announced formally Jan. 30.

Rosen said today he can't jeopardize his future security. He is working for a Cleveland brokerage firm.

Case Outdoes Himself

LAKELAND, Fla., April 1 (AP)—Manager Casey Stengel even is outdoing himself while platooning his New York Yankees.

In yesterday's game against Kansas City, old Casey had Elston Howard in left field, Tony Kubek in center and Joe Collins in right. Howard came up the majors as a catcher. Collins as a first baseman and Kubek played shortstop for Denver last season.

Palmer Captures Azalea Golf Open

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 1 (AP)—Arnold Palmer rammed home a precious 18-inch putt on the final hole today for a 75 that gave him a 282 total and a one stroke victory over Dow Finsterwald in the Azalea Open Golf Tournament.

The 27-year-old Palmer, a La-Trobe, Pa., professional who was national amateur champion in 1954, picked up $1,700 of the total jackpot of $12,500 to bring his year's earnings to just under $12,000, second on the official list.

Set For Langhorne

LANGHORNE, Pa. — Joe Eubanks, the mite of a driver from Spartanburg, S. C., and Al Keller, spectacular speed merchant from Green Acres, Florida, will be shooting for their initial triumph when the 7th annual 150-mile Grand National Circuit championship is featured at the Langhorne Speedway, April 14. Both pilots of the late model sedans are veteran speedway campaigners, however, neither has been able to break the ice and register a victory at the Bucks County course.

ST. PETER, Minn. (AP)—Gustavus Adolphus this year became the first team in Minnesota College Conference basketball history to score 100 points in a game and still lost. The Gusties got 102 against Minnesota Duluth—but Duluth got 105.

EAST STROUDSBURG'S Firemen claimed the 1957 "Smokey Stover" bowling championship of the area today by virtue of their 121-pin victory over Stroudsburg's firemen at Harmon's Recreation Sunday.

Snead Drills In Rain; Pros Start Talking

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 1 (AP)—Sam Snead went out in the rain at Augusta National today to hit some practice shots for the 21st Masters tournament and in the dry comfort of Ed Dudley's shop some of Sam's fellow golf pros debated the wisdom of that move.

"Looks as if Sam didn't have it," commented one pro. "He wouldn't be out there hitting shots at this time if he did."

"Maybe he has it and doesn't want to lose it," another suggested.

More Talk

Today's preparations for the Masters were more conversation for the first great golf tournament April showers drenched the big Augusta National course, where of the first great golf tournament of the season will start Thursday. The course was officially opened for practice yesterday, but several of the top pros, including defending champion Jackie Burke and Ben Hogan arrived earlier and got in a few licks.

Besmanoff Tops Baker

NEW YORK, April 1 (AP)—Germany's Willi Besmanoff racked up his 13th straight victory and shot into the heavyweight top flight tonight by upsetting big Bob Baker of Pittsburgh in a telecast 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena.

Besmanoff won the unanimous decision.

Besmanoff, 24, who was outwheged by Baker 24½ to 19½, received the verdict from the three officials by identical scores of 5-4-1 in rounds. The AP card had Besmanoff in front, 6-4.

Baker was a 12-5 favorite.

It was Besmanoff's second victory in as many starts in the United States and his most important. Baker, once the leading heavyweight contender now is ranked fifth by the NBA and ninth by Ring Magazine. Willi, who stands 5-10½ to Baker's 6-2, is not in the heavyweight top ten.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 1 (AP)—Services will be held tomorrow for William A. (Billy) Meyer, former Pittsburgh Pirates manager who died yesterday after a prolonged illness.

Giants' Season Chances Slimmer Than Slim After Crippling Series Of Untimely Breaks

By S. D. Rockwell

Central Press Sports Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz.—Optimism is at a low ebb in the training camp of the New York Giants, but Manager Bill Rigney finds reason to believe that the club will be improved this season.

"We're not a sixth place team," he flatly declared. "I don't know where we'll finish, but it should be higher than sixth."

The Giants have had one setback after another. Jack Brandt, Bill White, Willie Kirkland and Paul Giel were drafted into the Army and then Jackie Robinson decided to retire from baseball.

The wounds of that blow had barely healed when Bill Sarni, first string catcher, suffered a heart attack on the first day of training. It ended the 29-year-old receiver's playing career.

"It was a tough break for us," Rigney said, "but it was even tougher for Sarni. Luckily, it was only a moderate attack. He'll be all right after he spends five weeks in the hospital."

Still Have Mays

The Giants dealt Reliever Hoyt Wilhelm to the St. Louis Cardinals for First Baseman-Outfielder Whitey Lockman a few days before training began and now Giant camp followers look for more vetures.

"We still have Willie Mays," Rigney pointed out, "and there is only one Willie."

Mays had a relatively poor season last year, batting .296, hitting 36 homers and driving in 84 runs. Rigney expects him to bounce back in a big way and perhaps lead the league in batting again.

"He is hitting the ball real good this spring," the manager said. "Willie was in bed with the virus for a few days, but he looks his old self again."

Veteran Don Mueller is a fixture in right field, but left field is open. Old Hank Sauer is a possibility there and so is Foster Castleman, an infielder who is being converted to the pasture.

The brightest prospect in the Giants camp is 22-year-old Andre Rodgers, a shortstop from Nassau in the Bahama Islands. The tall, rangy boy who speaks the queen's English is a former cricket player.

Still In Doubt

"We don't know whether he's ready," Rigney said, "but he will make it one of these days and when he does he'll make it in a big way."

Rodgers, a .267 hitter at Dallas last year, simply lacks know-how. If he must need more seasoning, the shortstop job will go to Daryl Spencer, who can field the position well enough.

Another newcomer is 23-year-old Ossie Virgil, a third baseman from the Dominican Republic. Although he batted only .265 at Minneapolis, Rigney feels that he will fill the bill at third.

There is a battle at first base between Lockman and Gail Harris, also up from Minneapolis. If Harris can do the job (he failed to make it last season) Lockman will go to left field.

The burden of catcher falls to 34-year-old Wes Westrum, who can hardly be counted upon to play a full schedule. The only other catcher on the roster is young Bob Schmidt, up from Dallas.

Hofman Back

Bobby Hofman, top utility man on the 1954 Giant championship team, was sold to the Minneapolis farm, but is now back with the Giants and may be retained as a reserve receiver.

Johnny Antonelli, a 20-game winner last season, head a pitching staff that looks pretty thin. Dick Littlefield, Gordon Jones, Albin Worthington and old Max Surkont are to be the other starters.

The once fabulous bullpen has become pretty thin, too. With Wilhelm gone 39-year-old Marv Grissom becomes the No. 1 stopper. He will get help from John McCall and Steve Ritzick.

Spooner, 3 Others Cut By Dodgers

TAMPA, Fla., April 1 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers reduced their squad to 29 players by releasing four to the Vero Beach replacement center today. They will be assigned to minor league clubs later.

The four included Karl Spooner, strikeout sensation of the last week of the 1954 season who apparently has failed in his comeback effort. He was out most of last season with a sore arm.

Others were outfielder Dan Demeter, infielder Dick Gray and first baseman Jim Gentile.

Macias To Defend Crown In 'Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1 (AP)—Raul Macias of Mexico City, recognized as the world bantamweight champion by the National Boxing Assn., agreed today to defend his title here May 11 against Donny Ursoa of the Philippines.

Promoter Bennie Ford said the 15-round bout for the 118-pound championship has the approval of the NBA and the California Athletic Commission. The fight at the Cow Palace will be neither broadcast nor televised.

Jet Action Wins Inaugural Handicap At Jamaica Track

NEW YORK, April 1 (AP)—Jet Action, a 14-1 shot on the board, made second place in the 1947 Kentucky Derby winner, Jet Pilot, returned to the races today after vacationing since last October, and defeated eight other sprinters in the $23,100 Paumonok Handicap at Jamaica.

The Paumonok is the traditional opening day stakes at this old Long Island horse track, and the crowd of 38,882 forgot that Jet Action is one of the fastest operators in the business. They let him get away at odds of 7 to 1.

Jet Action, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham's Maine Chance Farm, zoomed along in second place, then scooped past Edward Sirabo's Pine Echo, an invader from New England, to win by a length and a half.

Wins Bantamweight Title In Fire-Interrupted Bout

PARIS, April 1 (AP)—Unbeaten Alphonse Halimi, 25, of France tonight wrestled the world bantamweight championship from Italy's Mario D'Agata, 30, a deaf-mute, on a 15-round decision in a fire-interrupted title fight.

A capacity crowd of 17,000 saw France's first world title fight in 20 years.

An electrical fire, caused by a short circuit, in the lights above the ring, scattered burning metal, wire and rubber over the canvas with 15 seconds left in the third round. Some of the debris scarred D'Agata's back. Referee Philippe deBecker of Belgium halted the fight until the damage was repaired about 15 minutes later. He then ordered the bout resumed with the start of the fourth round.

The fans went wild when the decision was announced by the referee, the sole official.

The Associated Press card had the Frenchman far in front, 11 rounds to two with two even.

D'Agata, unbeaten in his last 20 fights, was making the first defense of the title he won by a sixth round knockout of France's Robert Cohen on June 29, 1956. The Italian was recognized as world champion by commissions all over the world except for the American National Boxing Assn., which recognizes Mexico's Raul (Raton) Macias as champion.

Before the bout, both D'Agata and Halimi promised that the winner would meet Macias within 90 days to clear up the muddle.

D'Agata weighed 117½, Halimi 116½.
